Trader's Premises Raided.

Saddle Lake, July 28.—The treaty payment party with the exception of Mr. Aylen, who had the misfortune to break his rig, returned from the north on Sunday night. They report the roads in a very bad condition and the creeks very high. The crossing of both the Big and Little Brazeau creeks being a very dangerous undertaking, the water reaching as high as the seats of their rigs. Our local member should make an effort towards having bridges built over these two creeks before some fatal accident happens.

While at Lac la Biche the police raided the premises of a trader named Myers, and found a quantity of "extract of ginger" on his premises. Inspector Demers fined him fifty dollars for having it in his possession and ordered the stuff to be destroyed. While not finding any fault with the judgment we think that considering there was another magistrate on the ground in the person of the Indian agent, it would have been more seemly if the inspector, who was naturally interested in the prosecution, had not also acted as sole judge in the case.

LOCAL.

Mrs. A. E. May has been very ill of late but is now recovering.
—A man drove into Edmon on yesterday and asked for T. G. Lauder's bakery. Tommy sold out his bakery over three years ago.

—Large gangs of men are at work on excavations for waterworks and sewerage systems and for the laying of water service connections.

—The Neepawa Press has issued a special immigration number. It is profusely illustrated and besides an excellent write-up of the district contains a history of half a dozen of the old timers of the district.

—In yesterday's paper we announced that a Minneapolis coal merchant was inquiring for an analysis of Edmonton coal. The following analysis, although not of our best coal, has been handed in: Combustible matter, 29.596 per cent; fixed carbon, 54.021 per cent; sulphur, .318; ash, 4.030; moisture, 12.933.

—Blairmore Times.—At the Frank mine the new shaft has now reached a depth of over 150 feet. High up on the mountain, near the main side, an endeavor is being made to reopen one of the air shafts that connects with the old workings, with every prospect of success. The removal of the logs from the lower end of the town to the new site selected for them on the north side of the track is proving a much slower job than was anticipated.

—The Rev. Jesse Gibson and Bernard Bryan, representing the Bible Society, are expected to visit Edmonton on Saturday next. The Rev. Mr. Gibson will speak in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, and in the Baptist church in the evening. The Rev. Bernard Bryan will speak in the church of England in the morning and the Presbyterian church at night. A meeting of the officers of the branch society and all those interested will be held in the Baptist church at 8:30 Saturday evening.

—An enterprising citizen of Moose Jaw has fitted up a park two miles up the river from Moose Jaw. He runs excursions on a small steamer up the river from the town. He has laid out baseball, lacrosse, cricket and golf grounds and has also erected a dancing pavilion. The scheme has met with a great deal of patronage and consequently success. Such a project would appeal greatly to Edmonton people and the natural advantages of Edmonton are greater for this purpose than in any other place in the west.

EDMONTON JAIL.

The material is now being laid on the ground for the Edmonton jail. The building will consist of a basement, ground floor, first floor and attic and will be 113 feet by 68 feet by 48 feet. The plan calls for a well-constructed and substantial building with all the latest fittings. The basement will consist of one section containing four cellars and another part in which will be situated a laundry room, boiler room, janitor's cellar, a daily storeroom and three winter storerooms. Off the basement and to the rear are situated the coal bins and acetylene gas generating room. In the basement are two double barred punishment cells. On the ground floor are other fourteen cells and in another section of this floor are a library room, kitchen, guard room, janitor's office, and a large storeroom. Fourteen additional cells are situated on the first floor or third storey. Besides these there are a kitchen, dining room, and parlor, as well as large workrooms for male and for female prisoners. In the attic are four bedrooms and a large storeroom. There are forty-two cells altogether. Twenty-one of these are for convicted male prisoners, seven for male prisoners awaiting trial, seven for female prisoners awaiting trial and five for convicted female prisoners and two punishment cells.

For the construction of the jail upwards of a million brick will be used. This amount has been ordered from Little's brickyard. Ross Bros. will install all the iron and cement work and will also do all plumbing. Over 1,200 barrels of cement will be used. All the floors will be concrete and with one exception the stairways will be iron with slate steps. The government will install the heating apparatus. Mr. Chas. May has the contract. He is given until May 29, 1905, to finish the work, but he expects to have everything completed by the fall of 1904. The contract price of the jail is between $150,000 and $180,000.

PRINTERS AGAIN DEFEATED.

Quite a large number of people visited the baseball grounds on the old race track yesterday evening and saw the printers meet their second defeat. Purches' boarding house aggregation being too strong for them. The game throughout was characterized by numerous errors, although at times each team would pick themselves up and play exceedingly good ball. The game afforded the greatest interest and amusement to the onlookers, who lustily cheered every error. Needless to say, they found ample employment. Mavey and Howe were in the pitcher's box for the printers and Gilmore (Ginger) for the boarding house team. The final score 33 to 12, shows that although the printers were up against a hard aggregation, they were not by any means outclassed. The teams lined up as follows:

Jardine	Catcher.	Marshall
Gilmour	Pitcher.	Howe
Hamilton	First Base.	Hull
Morris	Second Base.	McKinnon
Moore	Third Base.	Cashman
Birk	Shortstop.	Mavey
Hatger	Left Field.	Acheson
Phillips	Right Field.	Reynolds
McJennett	Center Field.	Twilley

W. Inzils acted as umpire.
The printers will likely give the boarding house team a return game some evening next week.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 29TH, 1903.

FROM OTTAWA

July 21st, 1903.

Bulletin Correspondence.

The two most important measures of the session, or at least those which require or provoke the longest discussion—the redistribution bill and the Grand Trunk Pacific railway proposition—are expected to reach the House during the present week, and it is feared that the discussion arising upon them will still further greatly lengthen the present very long session. The main estimates for the year ending June 30th, 1904, have nearly all been passed as well as the extra supplementaries for the year ending June 30th, 1903. But the supplementaries for 1904 are not yet down, nor the railway subsidies, and the iron, lead and binder twice bounties although before the House are yet to be discussed. Without the introduction of other business now before, or necessarily coming before, the House, the most contentious part of the session is yet to come. It is to be hoped, however, that the opposition will pursue different tactics from those which have delayed business during so many months. They charge the government with delay in bringing down important measures, but there is little effect in that charge when the government can very well point out day after day and night after night wasted by the opposition, not in contention over matters even of minor importance, but simply in idle talk purely for the purpose of obstruction. What object is to be gained by obstructing unimportant business while waiting for important business to be brought down? no one but the members of His Majesty's loyal opposition in the Canadian Parliament can see. If the government is culpable in holding back business the opposition are aiding them in doing so. If the opposition had assisted in clearing off unimportant measures as fast as they were brought forward, the government would then have been compelled to bring on the important measures or be convinced before the country of delaying business. This charge the opposition, by their peculiar tactics, have relieved them from and themselves assumed the burden.

Last night a short debate occurred on the subject of the fast Atlantic line the occasion being a vote to hand back to Peterson, Tate & Company, who had failed to carry out their accepted tender, the fifty thousand dollar deposit. The opposition denounced the government for not having already secured a fast Atlantic line. To this Sir William Mulock replied that the country so far had lost nothing by the government's failure; and that when the government could make a satisfactory bargain they were prepared to put on the line, but not before. It may be worth while to recall that before the late Conservative government went out of power in '96, Sir Charles Tupper had contracted with the Allan for a fast Atlantic service between Canada and British ports at a cost of one and a half million dollars a year. When the Liberal government came in they cancelled this contract and advertised for tenders. The result was the tender of Peterson, Tate & Company, for three-quarters of a million, but that company failed to carry out the agreement and the matter has been in abeyance ever since. On the general question it may safely be said that however desirable a fast Canadian Atlantic line might be from a national or imperial point of view, no benefit could possibly accrue to Canada that would warrant us in paying a million and a half a year for such a service. It is a very great question if the amount of the Peterson, Tate tender, just one-half that of the Allan, was not also more than value could be received for. The reason of the great cost of a Canadian fast Atlantic line is that Canada does not yet furnish in sufficient amount the class of travel that is necessary to make such a service a commercial success, and there seems to be no reason why Canada should saddle herself with immense and burdensome obligations in order to have a steamship service which her business is not large enough to need. What Canada needs is improvement and lower rates in freight service. Everyone can see the benefit that has resulted from the arrangement for cold storage of Canadian farm products provided at a nominal cost by the present department of agriculture. There is no man of doubt that Canada has benefited more greatly by this trifling expenditure applied to the proper object than it would have from the vast and improvident agreement between Sir Chas. Tupper and the Allan. At the postmaster general said, Canada can very well afford to wait for a fast Atlantic service until she can make a suitable bargain.

The result of the Manitoba elections seems to be that the local opposition has been practically put out of business. This result could only be expected under all the circumstances. On the one hand was an aggressive government holding a good majority, with a record for action along the lines of the greatest provincial needs, backed by the name and energy of a powerful railway corporation of which the Manitoba government might be said in the first place to be the creator, but of which it has now become the creature. On the other hand was the opposition led by ex-Premier Greenway, who had been discredited amongst his friends without effective criticism or alternative policy, and without union of effort or idea amongst his followers. In such a case there could be only one result. The worst feature of that result is that it is apt to give a mistaken impression as to the reasons which brought it about. The opposition having no alternative provincial policy, fell back upon an appeal for support because they were Liberals. On the other hand the government, strongly entrenched fully armed, and with an aggressive policy declared themselves as Conservatives. To the outsider then the result of the battle seems to be an overwhelming victory for Conservatism over Liberalism in the province which gives everything it has of value politically to Liberalism and depends upon the Liberal policy for all it hopes for the future.

This election is welcomed by Dominion Conservatives as an evidence that Manitoba is willing to accept a protective tariff; and no doubt Liberals of other provinces who have looked to Manitoba to stand by her own interests in this matter are correspondingly disheartened. No doubt every effort will be made by the victorious party both in the province and in the Dominion to misrepresent the case in this way and it is to be doubly regretted that the provincial Liberals, by the attitude which they assumed have made this course very possible. As a matter of fact there is no doubt that the relief from railway monopoly and reduction in freight rate secured by the Roblin government through its bargain with the Canadian Northern railway company, was the real reason of the maintenance of that government in power. When no reduction of grain rates was in sight from any source the bargain with the Canadian Northern secured a reduction of two cents per hundred, with the promise of two cents more to take effect on the first of September next. Four cents per hundred in reduced rates on grain was all the argument needed to convince Manitoba that the policy which secured it should be continued. Four cents a hundred on grain was what sustained Roblin and defeated Greenway; not that one called himself a Conservative and the other a Liberal, or that one declared for protection and the other against it. The recent election is no more an endorsement of the Dominion Conservative party nor of its principle of protection than if it had never taken place. The people of Manitoba voted on the question of transportation, not on the question of tariff. The transportation which they have just endorsed so strongly was directly opposed to that of the Conservative party of the Dominion; inasmuch as it was an attack upon the C. P. R. monopoly, to uphold which had been the policy of the Conservative party twenty years. Now that the Canadian Northern has become established, its interest in preventing the further competition of the Grand Trunk Pacific is identical with that of the C. P. R., and on this new question both provincial and Dominion Conservative parties are in accord, with each other and with the C. P. R. and C. N. R. companies as well. But this phase of the question was of too recent development to be seriously considered by the electors in the late contest.

WHITE WHALE LAKE

The finest looking crops between here and Edmonton are to be seen on the mission premises of the reserve here.

And the worst roads are not found on this reserve. There are many white people who speak very slightly of the Indian and his indispensible labor, but the roads they have made will put to shame many of the people who regard them so lightly. Why is it that so many white settlers will endure almost impassable bog holes in front of their premises, making the roads a danger to every passer-by, and bring the anathemas of the traveller on the head of the people and of their road overseer.

Who is the road overseer in Central Slony Plain? Is he dead or asleep, or is he the country? The roads are a disgrace.

Mr. F. A. Smith, of Toronto, son of J. B. Smith, coal and lumber merchant, and nephew of Robt. Jaffray of the Globe, has been paying our district a visit to inspect its capabilities for stock. He is an extensive traveller, has served in the South African war, was in the Bart's river fight, almost losing his life by a bullet passing through from shoulder to shoulder; was present at the coronation festivities and makes extremely interesting company though a very modest personage. The impressions he has received of our district are very favorable indeed.

Some of our neighbors have been doing a sensible thing in giving information to the land office that is leading to the cancellation of a number of homestead entries made long since yet with no attempt at fulfilling homestead duties. Such a condition delays settlement, hurls in the formation of school districts and the construction of passable roads.

My attention has been called to an incorrect statement concerning the relation existing between Rev. Dr. McDougall and the mission on this reserve. It seems he is still the superintendent.

As Rev. C. E. Somerset has stepped down from the principalship of Red Deer Industrial School, it may be inferred that we shall see his face no more on periodical visits to this reserve on periodical visits to this school, serving pupils for that school. The furniture for the new White Whale school has arrived at last, and we suppose that the school will be in operation soon. Mr. D. E. Lent has been engaged as teacher.

The new missionary, Rev. C. F. Hopkins, has arrived and assumed the responsibility of his position. We hope to speak for him a cordial reception.

Telegram.
Dr. Mattice and Mr. Cochrane are in the city from Nebraska to confer with Immigration Commissioner J. Obed Smith with reference to bringing out a party of about fifty Scotch families from that state. Although there has been a steady influx from this state of the American union, this is the largest private party that comes to the Canadian west from Nebraska. It is the intention of these immigrants to settle in the vicinity of Sullivan and Buffalo lakes, near the Red Deer river in Alberta.

ROSS CREEK

Time strawberries will grow in the Northwest. A ripe berry grown by P. Thier measured four inches in circumference, others not yet ripe will probably measure over five inches.

The government bridge builder and crew passed through here on the 29th on their way to Telford, where they will finish the two bridges begun last winter. While here Mr. Allard tried to make arrangements to get some breaking down on his homestead in the western part of this settlement.

In some of the meadows where there has been no hay for three years the grass is now from three to five feet tall, but the frequent showers will make mowing impossible unless there is a great change soon.

Mr. Wilmer's has been clearing and breaking up his homestead. We wish him success in his new occupation. Elmer Hillberg has his place almost fenced in and numerous other improvements done. He expects to build a new house soon.

Road Cracks would be thankful for a government bridge, where the mail should cross the creek, that would not wash out each year. At present the mail is carried around three miles farther than would be necessary if the bridge were built and the road opened.

The rain has made our bad roads worse. One reason for the prevalence of bad roads throughout the country is the lack of agreement and united action among the advocates of improvement. Everybody prefers good roads to bad. Everybody knows that roads can be improved only by the expenditure of money and labor, but there the agreement ends. There is a great variety of ideas and schemes for securing the desired object. There is no end of discussion, but very little is accomplished. Some people would rather travel through mud than have the roads improved by any other plan than their own, or rather suffer the same trouble and hardships many times and almost bury their horses in mud than to do one day's or one hour's work for their own and the benefit of all who travel that road. A good road gives travelers a good impression of the community.

There is no danger whatever from this disease when taken in time and properly treated. All that is necessary is to give
